

Phonetic Variability in Regional Dialects of Spanish

Kai Carter

PhD

Universidad Complutense de Madrid

Av. Séneca, 2, 28040 Madrid, Spain

Drew Turner

PhD

University of Texas at Austin

Austin, TX 78712, United States

Drew Wright

PhD

University of Buenos Aires

Viamonte 430, C1053 CABA, Argentina

Abstract. This article explores phonetic variability in regional dialects of Spanish spoken across different territories. Through acoustic analysis, we identify distinct phonetic features characteristic of various regions. The research highlights the dynamic nature of spoken Spanish and its evolution. Results emphasize the importance of regional identity and socio-cultural factors influencing phonetic variation. This work enhances the understanding of Spanish linguistics and provides insights into the study of regional dialects within a language.

Keywords: phonetic, dialects, spanish, regional, variation

Introduction: Phonetic variation within a language is a fascinating subject, reflecting both historical developments and contemporary social factors. In the context of Spanish, regional dialects exhibit significant phonetic differences influenced by geographical, cultural, and social variables. This study delves into the phonetic characteristics of regional Spanish dialects, aiming to map out these variations through detailed acoustic analysis. By examining dialects from diverse regions, we seek to understand how phonetic features contribute to regional identity and mutual intelligibility among Spanish speakers. Such insights are critical for the preservation of linguistic diversity and for educational practices addressing language variation. The findings provide a framework for future research into dialectology and phonoacoustic studies, offering a richer perspective on the linguistic landscape of Spanish.

This is a preliminary version. To read the full version of the article, please purchase a subscription.

References

1. РЫСПАКОВА, М., & ТУРСУНОВА, А. (2024). НОВЫЕ ТЕХНОЛОГИИ ПРИ СИНТАКСИЧЕСКОМ РАЗБОРЕ ПРЕДЛОЖЕНИЯ. EURASIAN SCIENCE REVIEW Учредители: Eurasian Science Review, 2(6), 742-750.
2. HURKO, O. V. (2020). Intersection of Affirmative Meanings in the Ukrainian Literary Language (on the materials of contemporary fiction). Astra Salvensis-revista de istorie si cultura, 8(Supplement), 605-617.